Homework 4: Due Wednesday, Jan 25

2.0 Websites offering valuable product/service
Submit a 1-page narrative describing three websites (each about 1/3\textsuperscript{rd} of a page). List the exact website and your perspective on this website.

Begin by browsing the websites listed in HW 3 (other than the one chosen by you for presentation). The chosen websites must offer concrete projects offering some services or product that creates value that you appreciate. In contrast to homework 1 that focused on websites for action (for example, call for petition, protest), these websites should offer products/services/solutions.

The three websites must be on three different topics or issues of interest to you. If possible, try to identify something that you would have aspired to create.

The websites must be new to you (not known to you before the beginning of the class) and must not have been reported previously in any of your old assignments or to be presented by your group on Wednesday. Try to identify not the most obvious well-known websites but unique ones (that much fewer people would know about) that you discover through your journey on the web as you delve deeper. No credit will be given for websites that are extremely well-known (a good rule is that if majority of students in the class have heard about this website, then you should try to discover something new) and you will be asked to resubmit the homework.

If you have spent lots of time and cannot find Web 2.0 websites that you truly admire, then 1.0 websites will be acceptable with an added explanation on a separate page regarding the process you used to identify web 2.0 sites and did not succeed.

Read the article “The Fortune at the Bottom of the Pyramid”.